

YOUR ADVENTURE

Writing Tool

If you do your best thinking while writing use this document to write down what you envision at each step.

Call to Action

In two to three sentences, record your call to action. What is drawing your attention right now?

Guide

Recall the interaction. What was said? Note the circumstances. What inspired you to select this moment of your life? Recall and record the wisdom you still carry with you from the experience.

Crossing the Threshold

Select a subject that represents something about the challenge. It is a symbol that bears an element of the call you're answering.

First Failure

What will happen if you don't succeed with your first attempt?

or imagine what will happen if nothing changes and things continue as they are currently.

Your Allies

This stage is where we begin to see the inherent potential in our virtual global network. We are considering the possibility of connection. Who else is doing the work you want to be a part of? For this step I want you to imagine what some of that work looks like. Are they a company? What do they do? Are they a small band of artists? Is it the next school you want to attend? Is it a non-profit organization? Map out a number of connections

Connection 1:	2:	3:	4:

What do they do?

What unique thing do you bring to the team?

What could you work on?

Sizing Things Up

imagine the physical capability of your enemy:

Strength

1 _____

2 _____

3 _____

Weakness

1 _____

2 _____

3 _____

How does that compare to your team’s collective capability?

Strength

Ally 1 _____

Ally 2 _____

Ally 3 _____

Weakness

Ally 1 _____

Ally 2 _____

Ally 3 _____

Imagined success in the face of battle

Imagine your dream realized. What would the world look like in two years from now if you succeed?

What benefits will all this effort bring?

What will your contribution look and feel like upon succeeding?

Additional Ideas:

Finding Friends in Unexpected Places

1) What would it involve to change the course of action in your favor? Do you have to lop off the arm of your opponent, or can you gather more allies to support your course of action? What are the weaknesses of your enemy? How fast can they really move? On this playing field you can operate at the speed of light once your strategy is developed.

2) If your initial plan of attack bears it's own weaknesses in light of this now information, what can you do to make it better?

3) Can you think of an alternative strategy for engaging the enemy in case these first two strategies don't work?

Consciousness involves knowing the true responsibility of seeing your goal through, but with allies, you have the greater opportunity to succeed. See if you can summarize your strategies into one-sentence approaches:

Plan A _____

Plan B _____

Plan C _____

Plan D _____