

So I just spent the last 3 hours working on my web page. I'll tell you what; that was pretty difficult. There are a lot of issues with Wordpress, it's unnecessarily complicated if you ask me. Today I changed the background and header, gave all of my posts a featured picture, reorganized the categories and put the posts where they belong. I changed my icon and tried to adjust the font. However the font isn't working with me- it's red and bolded because the background is so distracting. I wish The posts would have a white background to show the texts better.

I don't really know what I'm doing here on wordpress, but it is good practice. It was an intense three hours. Maybe I should consult Lynda.com. If we are getting graded on our webpage, I hope it's relative to the other work we've been doing. I am definitely not a web builder.

Until next time~
